- 3. Is the majority of the faculty Catholic?
- 4. Do you publicly require all Catholic theology professors to have the mandatum?
- 5. Did all Catholic theology professors take the "Oath of Fidelity"?
- 6. Do you provide daily Mass and posted times (at least weekly) for individual confession?
- 7. Do you exclude advocates of abortion, euthanasia, cloning or of the redefinition of marriage as commencement speakers and/or recipients of honorary degrees?
- 8. Do you exclude sponsoring campus groups and clubs that are not in line with Catholic teaching (examples: abortion- and LGBT-related clubs). If allowed, please explain.
- 9. Do you exclude coed dorms?
- 10. Do your student health services exclude referrals to abortion businesses? Note: N/A = Not Applicable here are two theaters on Benedictine College's campus. May's performances of The Jeweler's Shop took place in neither.

Faith on a Kansas Stage

I saw it in the finished attic space of the 150-year-old original abbey building on campus. Partway through the play, loud knocks and angry Nazi shouting interrupted the performance. The director frantically motioned for a student sitting near me to pull a plug beside him. The room went dark.

We waited for the banging to stop, then the performance resumed - this time.

Welcome to Benedictine College's theater department. The Jeweler's Shop production featured several hallmarks of the department: It took faith seriously, brought a surprising take to its subject matter and show-cased remarkable student talent.

The department doesn't focus only on faith-related subjects. Far from it. But it has quietly become a place for students to explore how faith and storytelling intersect.

"I've heard some of our actors of deeper faith talk about their performances as gifts from God, and they pray for his guidance," Scott Cox, the chair of the department, told me. "Our department's actors, almost to a number, feel a spiritual connection to their art and con-TOM HOOPES

sider their talents a gift from God to be employed in his service, even when the subject matter is not explicitly tied to religion."

Edward Mulholland, director of the Great Books program at Benedictine College, has worked with the theater department on several occasions. "I think Scott is doing amazing things with that department," he said. "The number of declared majors has tripled in the past two years."

He pointed out that at the 2015

Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival for the region, Cox's original play Pas de Deux was one of only five productions asked to perform a scene at the festival and the only one to receive a standing ovation. Benedictine College senior Clare Nowak of Arvada, Colo., received an "Outstanding Performance Award" at the festival for the production.

As my children poked me and pointed out Nowak like a celebrity at Mass, it occurred to me that something extraordinary is happening in our little town.

Faith and Theater

A week after The Jeweler's Shop, I watched the production of Doubt, featuring another hallmark of the theater department: faculty involvement. The play starred psychology professor Adam Buhman-Wiggs, past president of the Kansas Psychological Association and a leader at Atchison's St. Benedict parish.

Its director was Zach Boyer, a senior from Subiaco, Ark., who introduced the play with an announcement: He would enter a monastery after graduation.

The same night, across campus, Jacob Donaldson was discussing Samuel Beckett's Waiting for Godot at a Communion and Liberation movement event. Donaldson, a senior theater major from Walla Walla, Wash., had finished a week of performances of the absurdist play he directed.

In March, on EWTN's Life on the Rock, Donaldson explained how the theater department brought him to Communion and Liberation and his faith.

He was an atheist when his parents told him his college choices were limited to a school with a strong Catholic identity. "I hated that," he said. "I wanted to study acting. I didn't want to go to a liberal arts school in Kansas. I went very resentfully."

A chance meeting changed that. "I met some people in Communion Liberation University, and they were so happy. These people were full of life. They talked about music, film. They argued about philosophy, about everything. I was completely attracted to that."

e- Later, at a retreat, he rediscovry ered God. He says faith improved his acting.

The question posed by drama is "What is it to be human?" he said. "That's a real question. Not only is that my question in trying to figure out how I'm going to play a character, but 'What is it to be human?' is the question I carry everywhere."

The Pope's Play

The "underground" approach to The Jeweler's Shop production I saw sought to recreate what Karol Wojtyla and the Rhapsodic Theater achieved in 1940s Poland during the Nazi occupation.

The approach was the brainchild of director Will Wright of Omaha, Neb., a senior theater major and Gregorian Fellow at the college, and was meant to keep audiences glued to the philosophical play.

No posters advertised the play's performances. Each day's location was announced on the morning of the performance.

Yet "the sheer number of people who attended blew us away," Wright said. "We ended up filling the house, so much so that our actors were barely able to navigate their way to the stage."

RAWPIXEL/SHUTTERSTOCK

Senior Sydney Giefer was one of the leads. She said the unusual nature of the production became clear at the first rehearsal, when the director failed to show up — instead, actors found a puzzle that formed a message: "We've been compromised. Meditation Room 4th Floor Elizabeth. Stick together. Tell no one. You're not safe."

"We fled across campus, running three different ways," she said. "It was an impromptu but great way to start the rehearsals of a show that was supposed to be underground theater."

Giefer, a double major, says the department has taught her that theater and evangelization go hand in hand.

"Theater is paired particularly well with Benedictine's evangelization and catechesis major," she said. "In order to truthfully portray a character, acting emphasizes [a] deep understanding [of] the human person and honing skills of being present in the moment. It is a call to honesty and encounter, much like evangelization." Tom Hoopes is writer in residence at Benedictine College in Atchison, Kansas.

Questionnaire Sources

offers objective questions about a university's Catholic identity. We designed the questionnaire so that a "YES" answer reflects essential elements of the renewal of Catholic identity called for by Pope St. John Paul II's 1990 apostolic constitution on higher education, Ex Corde Ecclesiae (Out of the Heart of the Church), its 2000 "Application to the United States," canon law and other relevant Church documents.

The Institution

■ President's Oath: Canon 833: The president of a Catholic university is personally bound to make a profession of faith, according to the formula approved by the Apostolic See, in the presence of the chancellor or diocesan bishop or a delegate at the beginning of the term of office.

The Profession of Faith and the Oath of Fidelity, "Acta Apostolicae Sedis" 1989: The obligation of a special oath of fidelity has been extended to presidents of Catholic universities.

Catholic Board: U.S. Application: To the extent possible, the majority of the board of trustees should be Catholics committed to the Church.

Catholic Faculty: U.S. Application: The university should strive to recruit and appoint Catholics as professors so that, to the extent possible, those committed to the witness of the faith will constitute a majority of the faculty.

■ Mandatum Required: Canon 812: It is necessary that Catholic theologians have a mandatum from the diocesan bishop.

Pope John Paul II (to American bishops, 2004): "By their very nature, Catholic colleges and universities are called to offer an institutional witness of fidelity to Christ and to his word as it comes to us from the Church, a public witness expressed in the canonical requirement of the mandatum."

U.S. Application: Both the university and the bishops, aware of the contributions made by theologians to Church and academy, have a right to expect them to present authentic Catholic teaching. Catholic professors of the theological disciplines have a corresponding duty to be faithful to the Church's magisterium as the authoritative interpreter of sacred Scripture and sacred Tradition.

U.S. Application: Catholic students have a right to receive from a university instruction in authentic Catholic doctrine and practice, especially from theologians.

Mandatum Text: "I hereby declare my role and responsibility as a teacher of a theological discipline within the full communion of the Church. As a teacher of a theological discipline, therefore, I am committed to teach authentic Catholic doctrine and he Catholic Identity College Questionnaire to refrain from putting forth as Catholic teaching anything contrary to the Church's magisterium."

U.S. Application: If a particular professor lacks a mandatum and continues to teach a theological discipline, the university must determine what further action may be taken in accordance with its own mission and statutes.

■ Theologians' Oath: Canon 833: Catholic theologians are personally bound to make a profession of faith, according to the formula approved by the Apostolic See, in the presence of the university president if he is a priest, or the diocesan bishop or a delegate, at the beginning of their term of office.

The Profession of Faith and the Oath of Fidelity, "Acta Apostolicae Sedis" 1989: The obligation of a special oath of fidelity has been extended to Catholic theology professors.

Campus Culture

■ Mass and Confession: U.S. Application: Catholic students have a right to be provided with opportunities to practice the faith through participation in Mass, the sacraments, religious devotions and other authentic forms of Catholic spirituality. The university shall make provision for effective campus-ministry programs, including the celebration of the sacraments, especially the Eucharist and penance, other liturgical celebrations and opportunities for prayer and spiritual reflection.

■ Speakers Vetted: The U.S. Bishops' 2004 "Catholics in Political Life": Catholic institutions should not honor those who act in defiance of our fundamental moral principles. They should not be given awards, honors or platforms that would suggest support for their actions.

Unobjectionable Clubs: U.S. Application: It is important for Catholic universities to implement in practical terms their commitment to the essential elements of Catholic identity, including activities of officially recognized student and faculty organizations and associations.

■ No Coed Dorms: U.S. Application: It is important for Catholic universities to implement in practical terms their commitment to the essential elements of Catholic identity, including the commitment to create a campus culture and environment that is expressive and supportive of a Catholic way of life.

Health Services Okay: U.S. Application: It is important for Catholic universities to implement in practical terms their commitment to the essential elements of Catholic identity, including the commitment to provide health care in conformity with the Church's ethical and religious teaching and directives.

"Who ever knew Truth put ere are the 39 schools that each answered 10 questions about their college's institutional standards and campus culture. A check mark indicates a positive answer to our Catholic identity question. Schools' comments expanding upon a "Yes" answer and explaining a "No" answer are included, as well as other comments. View online at NCRegister. com / "Resources."

Catholic Board and Faculty: With regard to the board of trustees, the college follows the policy outlined in the apostolic constitution Ex Corde Ecclesiae of St. John Paul II and the norms contained in "The Application of Ex Corde Ecclesiae for the United States" promulgated by the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops. Theologians' Oath: The mandatum is the proper requirement for undergraduate faculty and institutions, and we require it of all Catholic faculty members in theology. The "Profession of Faith" and "Oath of Fidelity" are more proper for pontifical faculties teaching in seminaries.

Coed Dorms: We have six residence halls. Five of the six are single-sex, and only one is coed. It is reserved for upperclassmen, and each floor is divided by men and women. Visitation policies are enforced in this hall, as they are in all of our residential halls. This upperclassmen residence hall provides those students who live there an opportunity to demonstrate the ability to live in an adult community while at the same time upholding themselves and their colleagues to excellence and virtue.

and vocational. Campion is grounded in the Catholic faith and exercises faithfulness to the teachings of the Church, but it helps all students live out their faith in all areas of life.

Dorms: Campion's accommodations are segregated, male and female, across all dorms and residences. Individuals are not permitted to enter rooms of the opposite sex, and access to the living spaces is limited. Senior students are designated as residential assistants, and one is allocated to each area. There is a senior residential assistant who lives on campus.

Mandatum: Catholic theologians must receive a "canonical mission" from the local bishop/chancellor that obliges them to "teach in the name of the Church"

Theologians' Oath: The Catholic faculty recite the "Profession of Faith" in the presence of and along with the local bishop/chancellor and president at the opening Mass of each academic year. Catholic faculty have not been required to take the "Oath of Fidelity" because of the canonical mission/nihil obstat binding the ecclesiastical faculties. In addition, three halls have religious in residence - two female residence halls have sisters living with students, and a priest lives in one of the male halls. An Equal Opportunity University

What the world needs now is greatness not mediocrity.

Our time-tested Catholic liberal arts education – the same education that has inspired the greatest minds of Western Civilization – is not for the faint of heart, but for those who are willing to accept the bold and challenging call from God to become the great men and women He wants them to be.

Dare to join us. Dare to be great.

Institution: Thomas More College of Liberal Arts offers a Catholic education in the Great Books of Western civilization. Following the example of its patron, St. Thomas More, the college emphasizes the unity of the intellectual life and service within the Church and society. The college has one of the oldest Rome programs of any American college and also offers study and internship fellowships in Spain, England and Ireland. Students of the college not only study about civilization, but enact the traditions through the college's art program ("Way of Beauty") and the collegiate guilds, learning woodworking, sacred art, sacred music and other traditional crafts.
